FBR Integration

The federal board of revenue makes it mandatory for tier-1 retailers to integrate their retail outlet with a computerized system that provides real-time reporting of the sale. Similarly, Tier-1 retailers must obtain a license before integrating their retail business into third-party supplier software. The Tier-1 retailers are prohibited from generating any receipt without mentioning the QR code or FBR invoice number. Additionally, those retailers who already have the Point of Sale software installed in their grocery store, toy shop, brick, and mortar store, etc., must install separately a component software authorized from FBR and then integrate that component software with FBR. Howmuch POS is officially integrated with FBR (Federal Board of Revenue). It allows retailers to handle sales, exchanges, and returns and check cyber security, data integrity, and processes. Retailers do not have to go the extra mile to fulfill the criteria of having FBR-integrated POS. Howmuch POS automatically updates reports and invoices to FBR servers. It also generates the FBR authorized receipts that will eliminate the skepticism among customers about whether the sales tax is approved officially or not.
